Are Here Again," each make up a yell and then apply motions to it. Then each gave a brief talk on what they planned to do next year to better school spirit, etc.

They were also taught the yell, Beat'em Team Beat'em, and were to perform it together.

Try-outs for the other six positions will be held next September for all other freshman and sophomore students who are interested.

Kathy and Jim will be going to yell school this summer in order to obtain some new ideas in leadership as well as in yells and motions.

Students Receive Scholarships

The Green River Community College scholarship committee, in a pilot program, has selected one student each from the five service area high schools to receive a leadership scholarship to Green River.

The six students receiving the $100 scholarships to Green River are from the following area high schools: Kent-Meridian, Renton, Tahoma, Auburn and Enumclaw, the lone high school receiving a scholarship that is not in the service area is Sumner High School.

Judith Ann Burrell, of Kent High School is the recipient of the Washington State PTA future teachers' scholarship and will also be attending Green River this fall.

Dean Chosen For Program

Dean Norman has been selected by a board at Springfield College in Massachusetts to attend their six-week program.

The program, beginning June 26 and ending on August 4, will concentrate on developing new techniques in guidance and counseling. The college has selected persons in higher education in a cross-section of the country enabling them to familiarize their new system with a great number of schools readily and efficiently.

Dean Norman stated that he was, "very pleased to have been selected" and feels that "the six weeks will be very worthwhile."

Abolish Student Deferments; Preliminary Decision Move

(ACP) — President Johnson recently canceled plans for this fall's college deferment tests in a move preliminary to a decision on whether to continue student deferments. The following editorial from the State Press, Arizona State University, Tempe, looks at the pros and cons of the current and proposed draft systems.

To university students, the most important of the far-reaching reforms proposed by the President's special Commission on the Selective Service is the discontinuation of under-graduate deferments.

Thus, students would receive the same draft consideration as factory workers, file clerks, and ditch diggers. Not surprisingly this recommendation has not been met with universal glee.

BETTER HIMSELF

According to Joe College, a student is trying to better himself and make an invaluable contribution to his country as one of its intellectual leaders. The poor wretch who is either too stupid or too poor to make it to college is the logical draft choice, says Joe.

Perhaps Joe is right, but he might get an argument from Poor Wretch. But avoid for the moment any value judgment concerning who is the more logical draft choice and look at the proposals objectively.

NOT BLACK AND WHITE

The question of student deferments is not black and white. Both the present system and the proposed reforms have advantages. It is necessary, therefore, to construct something of a balance sheet.

On the credit side of the present system is the protection from the draft, at least temporarily, of hundreds of students who sincerely seek a higher education and have the ability to make the most of it. The military can offer them nothing, and they can offer the military little except a healthy serving of resentment at the imposition.

DEBITS

There are two distinct debits. First, the deferment is only temporary. When a student's education is completed, his age makes him more than ever ripe for the plucking. He is eager to begin his career, but he is likely to be drafted.

Second, the present system encourages the hanger-on: The guy who comes to school with no intention of offering the university anything and who takes nothing from it except a diploma; the guy who makes it through the graduation on the skin of his teeth and his roommate's notes; the guy who shudders every time he sees a uniform; the university parasite.

CONTRAST REFORMS

Contrast the proposed reforms. Debit: There would be virtually no student deferments; thus, many potentially fine students would be drafted. Credit: Once a student makes it past his 19th birthday, in all likelihood he will escape the draft and make plans for his future with confidence. Instead of two or three years of anxious uncertainty, only his 19th year will be tense.

Since being a student will not in itself offer any favorable consideration from the draft board, the draft dodger will find no advantage in expending the minimum effort required to get through school and thus will not burden the university with his presence. The loss will be the gain of all sincerely dedicated students.

Merrill Hartshorn, and Marcus Gillespie were guests of Dr. Emlyn Jones last month on the Green River College campus. Both are national authorities in the field of social studies.

National Social Studies Authorities Visit Campus

Merrill Hartshorn, executive secretary of the National Council for the Social Studies, and his assistant, Marcus Gillespie, were guests on the Green River College campus.

The impromptu visit by the two national leaders in education was a side trip while they were in Seattle making plans for the annual convention of the National Council which will be in Seattle November 19-25, 1967.

Dr. Emlyn Jones, head of the Green River College department of social science, and Dr. Melvin Lindbloom, president of the college, took the visitors on a tour of the campus.

Dr. Jones, a personal friend of both men, said they were so impressed by the college's setting that they spent several hours on campus. "They spoke most highly of the equipment available for the instructors and students and of the high quality of the staff," he noted.

Mr. Gillespie, who is a trustee for a community college in northern Virginia, was particularly lavish in his praise, saying he had seen nothing to equal Green River College in any of his travels throughout the United States, Dr. Jones reported. He carried back to Washington, D. C. pictures, descriptions and specifications of the various buildings.

Pragmatically Speaking —

A national magazine said recently that today's younger generation's single ideal is pragmatism: The value of an object or action is whether it works. This was never more evident than today, comments the Xavier News, Xavier University, Cincinnati.

Today's student looks at the economic system and finds entire nations facing starvation in the midst of plenty.

Entire segments of society — the Negro, the Mexican, the Indian — face economic segregation and the impossibility of social advancement.

VIETNAM WAR

He looks at the Vietnam war as a failure — either because we are there in the first place or because there is a lack of firmness in the nation's leadership.

Washington fluctuates from hot to cold in seeking the almighty consensus and the indecision, or failure to communicate, strikes the student as being worse than the war itself. To die for a just cause is one thing, but to fear that the sacrifice may be cheated of all significance causes one to hesitate.

CIVIL RIGHTS

He looks at the civil rights movement as lacking in perspective. Negroes realize, as so few whites do, that they have been cheated, yet they go to the opposite extreme in trying to erase 100 years of discrimination.

Society cannot be remade overnight. For the Negro to act contemptuously of whites is just as wrong as the white man's attitude in the first place.

EDUCATION

The most startling expression of youth's pragmatism is its view of education. Colleges are packed to the breaking point and still the relentless search for the key to the world continues.

Every major research program is dominated by youth; the greatest advancements in every field are made by the under-30 generation — yet dissatisfaction with the world continues.

What goal is pragmatism seeking? Is this generation the first to realize that the utopia sought by the 18th and 19th century idealist is really possible? It is, admittedly, a utopia of slightly different definition — an equality of mankind.

And it is the search for this equality that creates the impatience with which the Vietnam war and the civil rights movement are viewed. It is as if the younger generation is saying to its elders, "You are doing it all wrong; let us show you the way."

But although youth may possess the answers, age still controls the apparatus and the gap between the two is infinite. One refuses to recognize the other; the other refuses to wait.

College Looking For Host Homes

Several students for Green River Community College's first foreign student program are in need of host homes. Nine students from Japan in this country to study ornamental horticulture for three months will be attending Green River College from June 2 until August 31. The college is trying to locate host homes in the valley for these students and will pay $100 a month room and board.

Management Club Chooses Officers

Gary Ehler, freshman from Enumclaw, majoring in management, has been elected president of GRCC's Management Club for the coming 1967-68 school year. He is presently Vice-President of the Mid-Management division of the Distributive Education Clubs of America (DECA).

Other officers chosen were: First vice-president, Larry Veer, Federal Way grad; second vice-president, Rod Gray, Renton High grad; secretary, Pat Garin, Enumclaw High School; treasurer, Rich Bartel, from Orting High School; and state reporter, Sandee Rogers, from Kent-Meridian High School (DECA Sec.). All officers are management majors.

The historian and ASB representative offices were left open until next year.

Instructors To Attend Conference

Next August, vocational and technical instructors from Green River College, headed by Mr. Bud Gadwa, will journey to Seattle for the annual Conference of Trades and Industry Instructors.

The conference provides symposium classroom instruction in the problems of training and discussion of new teaching techniques.

Among those planning to attend, in addition to Gadwa, are Mr. Bert Badham, Mr. Roy Watson, Mr. Lawrence Locken, and Mr. Richard Inch of the Vocational Division, and Mr. Richard Norman of the Technical Division.

GARY EHLER

Students To Seek Placement

Mr. Bud Gadwa, the new head of the trades and industry department, announced Monday that there are six students scheduled to graduate this year from the automotive technology classes.

Each of these six has filled out apprenticeship forms and will be placed for on-the-job training. They will also be attending night school to study towards becoming journeymen auto mechanics.

These students will appear June 6 before the King County Automotive Joint Apprenticeship Committee for interviews and final approvals for admissions into the apprenticeship program.

Several students, who have passed the Seattle Certification Test, have been placed on jobs at Bangor.

The Current Undertow

Nostalgic Time Here

By D. Z.

This time of the year is a very nostalgic one for this column as it views the past year. This year will be an even more nostalgic one because it was my last year at Green River.

Two years at Green River have been very good ones for this column and its author.

A brief look at the first year reminds this writer of the raid on Highline College and the "capture" of its famed T-Bird.

SEES GROWTH

The writer of this column has seen Green River grow from a one-building facility to a multi-complex institution dedicated to the education of all. It has seen the paper, under the wise guidance of Mr. Eaton, change its name from the Gatortale to the Current.

This column, too, has undergone several changes. It survived one year as the Mouth, then one issue as the Current Dam, and, finally, the Undertow.

This writer had the honor of performing in two of Green River's plays: "Twelve Angry Men" and the "Solid Gold Cadillac."

SPLASH START

The beginning of this year opened with a splash as the Undertow and Larry Bennett "sailed" down the rapids of the Green River.

The Undertow has covered controversies ranging from long hair to the brilliance of the light bulbed city council. It has offered advice on the traffic problem, the drinking problem, the DeGaulle problem, the Vietnam problem, and the tax problem.

MANY DEBTS

The Undertow will be forever in debt to Mr. Merifield, Mrs. Van Ry, and Mrs. Goldberg for their invaluable advice and direction during the lean times as well as the fat times.

The Undertow will never forget Mary Thomas and her hard work on the semi-formal dance held this year at the Edgewater Inn. She was partially rewarded as her classmates selected her Miss Circle K Sweetheart.

John Jones and Jim Moran are to be thanked for making student government interesting this year.

RECOVERIES

The Undertow saw Green River recover from such setbacks as light shows, advisory boards, boycotts, Keatings, Spellmans, and elections.

Homage is also due Joan Peterson for starting from scratch and giving GRCC a cheer staff to be proud of.

Mr. Eaton and DeEtte Pravit are to be thanked for their patience with this column and for not blowing up because it was never in on time.

OTHER THANKS

Mrs. Dorothy Martin must be thanked for having my check ready every month - how she managed that with my constant interrupting is beyond imagination.

Thinking of all these things only makes me sorry that this is the last column to be written for The Current by this author - some readers will undoubtedly rejoice at this news. So, with fond memories in heart and mind, the Undertow bids Green River farewell and hopes that the successor to this space will take care of the school that I have come to know and love.

Alexander Wins Event

DON ALEXANDER

Mr. Don Alexander shot a brilliant 81 to win the first annual Green River Faculty Invitational Golf Meet. The event was held March 25 at the Lake Wilderness Course. Par for the event was 70.

Other winners included: Mr. Bill Dickson, the low gross handicap winner; and Mr. Richard Barkely, who won a prize for the longest drive. Barkely is the new registrar for Green River.

Some of the name golfers that participated in the tournament are Lou Corselleti, TNT; Ray Needham; Ed Eaton; Dr. Emlyn Jones; Dr. Melvin Lindbloom; Paul Lewan; Harold Taylor; and Col. Wine.

Mr. Alexander, currently with the math department, played well and would like to assure everyone that he did not calculate his shots on his now famous slide rule.

DIZZY D.Z.

Column Marks End Of First Proud Year

By Danny Zivanich

This will mark the last Dizzy DZ column to appear in a Green River Current. This column has covered Green River's first year in sports with pride. Everything from Vern Hoffer to Cassius Clay has been mentioned in this column. Having paid tribute to many athletes, this column would now like to record some new records and awards.

Greg Brovold has to have set a new record, both college and league, for most hurdles knocked over and most shoes forgotten. Vern Hoffer set a record for most tape used in a single season.

Dave Borden surely set a record for most plates cleaned - other than his own. Roger Sloan's 4.5 fouls a game will remain on the record books until his return next year.

OTHER AWARDS

Awards to be issued include Jim

Linford as best dressed, Larry Gatter as best trick shot with his "secret weapon," and Coach Aubert for best bench kicker in the conference.

Turning to a serious side, this column would like to thank the athletic department for the finest cooperation possible this past year.

The Dizzy DZ column is only sorry that it will not be around for the dedication and use of the new gym. But it is certain to bring success and large crowds to Green River next year.

BREAK RULE

The use of the term "I" is taboo among journalistic styles but "I" would like to break that age old rule momentarily.

I feel very privileged to have been acquainted and associated with such fine people as Coach Aubert, Coach Adams, Roger Sloan, Vern Hoffer, Greg Brovold, Larry Gatter, Dale Opp, and countless others connected with Green River's sports program.

As long as Green River continues to produce fine individuals as these, then the win-loss record will seem trivial. I am sure that next year will see Green River make itself a definite place in the community college league.

I would like to wish Mr. Aubert and all the coaches and players good luck next year as I say goodbye.

Shoreline Dominates Track Competition

Shoreline College continued its dominance of the community college track competition by handily winning the recent state meet. The closest opponent to the Samyrai fell short by twenty points in an effort to unseat the reigning champs.

After 16 events, the Sams held a commanding lead of 114 points to 93 by Highline. The lead was a permanent one as the Sams sailed to victory. Green River only managed one point.

The Gators sent three cindermen to the annual outing and of the three only Dale Opp managed to score. Opp placed sixth in the two-mile turning the course in 9:45. Doug Gordon, of Columbia Basin, won the event in a swift clocking of 9:31.4.

Green River's entry in the javelin fell way short of expectations. Greg Brovold, who had qualified a week earlier with a toss of 196-6½ feet, only managed to chuck the spear 165 feet.

Joe Neal did his best in the pole vault. He cleared at 12-6, his standard all season, but that wasn't good enough to place him in the finals.

Miller to Edit Manuscripts

Dr. Gerald Miller, geology instructor at Green River College, has been named an associate editor of the American Association of Petroleum Geologists Bulletin.

Dr. Miller will edit and review manuscripts for publication.

Formerly a geologist in industry, Dr. Miller is one of the foremost authorities on the geology of southern Utah. He has published papers on studies made in that area in connection with his doctor's dissertation.

Summer Jobs

There will be summer jobs available on campus this summer, for students. All "on-campus" job applicants are to file applications with Mrs. Winnie Vincent in the A.S.B. office.

All "off-campus" jobs are posted on the Help-Wanted Bulletin Board in the lower lounge.

G.R. Summer Program Adds Chem. Course

Chemistry 160, a third course in General Chemistry, has been added to the summer school program at Green River Community College.

The laboratory session will be Qualitative Analysis. The class will meet from 7:00 p.m. to 10:30 p.m. on Monday and Thursday evenings and will be taught by Dr. Edward Fohn.

The prerequisite for the course is Chemistry 150 or an equivalent course. Summer school registration will be held June 14 through 16 from 8:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m., and June 14 from 7:00 p.m. to 10:00 p.m.

The Green River College library will be open from 8:00 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. daily.
