Teacher Does His 'Thing' Teaching Conversational German Class

By MATILA BLACK

A teacher's "bag" is to help you grow. Teachers get very excited doing their thing. When they find a better method of teaching they feel as if they're really with it.

Rainier Dirks is very happy these days with the result of his Beginning Conversational German 100. He even has a few students transferring into German 102 and jumping over 101. One student is competent enough after this quarter to go to Germany and live with the German people. She is most anxious to go to Germany and practice what she has learned at Green River.

Mr. Dirks was introduced to the St. Cloud audi-visual method in a prep school in Honolulu. The St. Cloud method was pioneered in France and was introduced in the U.S. by Chilton Book Co. of Philadelphia, Pa. Mr. Dirks had to take additional training in order to teach the method using it in the classroom. This is the first time that this method has been used at GRCC.

Individual ability rather than technical knowledge, is stressed. Classroom competition is eliminated as all learn and teach each other, taking into consideration each individual's unique ability. Children learn to speak English by copying what they hear. So it is with the St. Cloud method, only after understanding and speaking does one realize that he is using the language correctly. The structure of the language is snuck in without the student being aware of it.

The method provides for greater self-confidence of the student. He develops a solid base in a language and can communicate without any problem. The stress in individual ability allows for greater informality. Students forget the embarrassment of seeming stupidity and learn to laugh at themselves as well as others. The cheerful noncompetitive atmosphere appears to be very conducive to learning.

Mr. Dirks is looking forward to teaching this same class, German 100, during the coming winter quarter.

New College Plan To Eliminate 'F'

Green River faculty members endorsed a plan submitted by a faculty committee last week to eliminate the F as a final grade.

Students still will receive grades of A, B, C, and D, but those students who do not complete the necessary work to pass the class will either withdraw, make arrangements for an incomplete under special circumstances, or just not get credit for the class.

Under the new policy, students will be allowed to withdraw at any time during the quarter. Others may find that, by mutual agreement with the instructor, they can complete the class by being given more time. Those students will receive incompletes (which was possible under the old system) but instructions for making up the incomplete will be written and placed in the student's folder.

All classes attempted will be posted on the student's record with a letter grade and credit or one of the following notations: "non-credit," withdrawal, or incomplete. The "non-credit" indicates not failure but that the student chose not to take the class for a grade, such as the student who audits a class.

Students with two or more withdrawals, incompletes, or non-credit classes in one quarter will be placed on "low scholarship." Two or more such marks two quarters in a row will make it necessary for the student to go before the Academic Committee before he will be allowed to enroll a third quarter. Students who do not appear before the committee will be suspended for one quarter.

The purpose of the new grading system is to put emphasis on achievement rather than failure, to guide students into programs where they can be successful.

"Students will still find they cannot pass certain subjects — which is part of their education — but rather than issue a F as punishment we're going to redirect them," indicated Dr. Melvin Lindbloom, president of the college. "Grades should be used to measure performance, to evaluate levels of achievement, but not as punishment or as a re-enforcement of the idea that some already have — that they are sure to fail."

Chinn Performs To Packed House

Artist Lecture in its continuing program to bring culture and quality entertainment from a wide variety of fields featured by classical and flamenco guitarist, Jeffery Chinn, here Tuesday before a capacity audience. Selections from H. Villa-Lobos, Robert Visee, Andres Segovia, and J. S. Bach were performed on the classical guitar.

The 21 year-old musician has been studying guitar since he was 15, switching his concentration from flamenco to classical music in the past three years. Before turning to the classical form Mr. Chinn played with Ciro's Flamenco Company and for Los Flamencos de la Bodega.

Recently, Mr. Chinn returned from a tour with the "Man of La Mancha" company on which he played lead guitar. In concert he plays music of the English Renaissance on the 13-string Stradivarius guitar.

Former U.S. Ambassador To Speak in Seattle

Arthur J. Goldberg, former United States Ambassador to the United Nations and presently chairman of the Board of the National United Nations Association/USA will be the featured speaker at a lecture and banquet in the Olympic Hotel Grand Ballroom in Seattle Monday. The Washington State Council of the UNA/USA is sponsoring Mr. Goldberg's appearance in Seattle in cooperation with other business and civic associations throughout the state.

Mr. Goldberg will be accompanied on his visit by Mr. Leonard F. McCollum and Mr. Robert S. Benjamin. Mr. McCollum, chairman of the Board of Continental Oil Co., was appointed by President Johnson to be National Chairman of UN

Day. Mr. Benjamin, who is chairman of the Board of United Artists Corp., is national president of the United Nations Association/USA.

Mr. Goldberg's talk at the banquet will be followed by questions from a select panel having special competence in the field of international relations and representing a wide variety of backgrounds and viewpoints. Audience participation will be invited.

Green River College will be sending Pauletta Brooks, Bruce Stendal, Brian Murray, George Murray, Cliff Frazier and Chris Goodman as representatives at the lecture. Mr. John Barnard, political science instructor at GRCC, will accompany the group.

NEW SENATOR — Jay Clemens, freshman from Renton, was appointed to the Student Senate this week, replacing Carol Cain who resigned.

READY FOR CONCERT — The Green River Brass Choir, shown performing here at the Open House, will be featured with the College Singers at the annual Christmas Concert Dec. 12. ## Editorial

'Laugh In' Is Real Break Away

There is a new look to the news-stands lately. No, it's not the latest issue of "Playboy." It's a brand new magazine with all the delights of the T.V. show LAUGH IN, it's called "Laugh In" and features anyone who can make chicken tracks. (Is that another chicken joke?)

Turning the sickening front page we find a picture of the handsome Dan Rowan and the volumptuous Dick Martin. The mag is filled with humor, cuts, wit and has a serious side with features about people on the show. The particular issue in mind is the second of its kind and hopefully not the last.

The writers and cartoonists have a way of cutting people in a very humorous way.

Some of the comments in the magazine are, "Tiny Tim is Rosemary's Baby", "Napalm gives you heart-burn", "Sir Walter Raleigh died of lung cancer," and "Stretcher bear-ers are carriers." Interviews feature such guests as Phyllis Diller in the November issue.

This new magazine is worth reading at least once, maybe twice!

— MIKE

(all quotes were from the November issue of Laugh In)

HO HO HO — Santa's a bit out of focus (although the photographer did manage to get his helper in focus) but his helicopter did ward off wind and rain to land at Kent Saturday. He's Santa, of course, but better known at Green River as Art Wickstrom, the jolly president of the infamous Green Guard. Art was recruited for the job by Mrs. Winnie Vincent, director of financial aids at the college after she read in the Kent paper about the town's need for a Santa. Wickstrom is a veteran of three Christmas Seasons as Santa in the Auburn area.

Music Teacher is Performer, Composer

Performer, composer, teacher Gilbert Piger is a member of the music staff at Green River and is currently giving individual instruction to hopeful college guitar students.

Mr. Piger just returned this fall from Spain where he studied for a year and a half with the gop classical guitar teacher in the world, Saiz de La Maza. He also worked with Jose Luis Rodrego while in Spain. Redrego is a disciple of Segovia, the world's best known performing classical guitarist.

Piger, who went to Spain specifically to study guitar at the Royal Conservatory in Madrid, played the violin since he was seven and was a music major at the University of Idaho for two and a half years beofore he decided to specialize and travel to Spain.

Composing is another of his talents. Several of his compositions were published in Spain.

Since returning from Spain the young artist has little time to establish a reputation in the Seattle area. He performed recently for the Seattle Guitar Society, has a concert coming up before music students in Tacoma and is hoping to arrange to peesent a concert at Green River during winter quarter. In his Seattle concert he featured the three movements of his "Pette Suite" which are entitled "Choros," "Sarbande," and "Jigue."

This quarter Piger has been teaching students individually but next quarter will have group classes in guitar. Most of his students are inexperienced but an ability to read music helps a great deal, he indicated.

Veterans Meet Again

Green River veterans are going to organize again.

The club was formed last year only to die down during the summer. The club is forming again and is looking for new members who have spent time in the armed forces. Meetings are every Wednesday in ST-32.

Recently elected officers are Howard Card, president; Dennis Crawford, vice-president; Gene McClinton, secretary; and Ben Edmonston, treasurer.

Indian Center Thanks College For Donation

Nov. 29, 1968

Dear Editor:

I would like to take this opportunity to thank the Associated Student Body of Green River Community College for their contribution of 1100 pounds of assorted canned goods to the Indian Center, and delivered to the Center by two student Senators Paul Land and Gordon Ips.

This contribution of canned foods will go towards filling the many boxes needed to help some Indian families have a merry Christmas. We help those families who do not go to other agencies for help and check closely with the Christmas Bureau to insure no duplications.

On behalf of the Indian Center and its sponsors the American Indian Womens Service League please convey our sincere thanks and appreciation for your interest and support of our program.

Wishing you the best in the coming year.

Sincerely,
Pearl Warren,
Director

Bookstore Adds Merchandise Variety

The Green River Bookstore, located in a portable next to the Lower Lounge behind the Physical Education Center, will be open throughout registration, Mrs. Pat Bennatts, store manager announced today.

The Bookstore is extremely busy at the beginning of every quarter when students are bying books, but students who haven't been to the bookstore since buying books early fall quarter will find several changes in the facilities and items on sale.

Recently the bookstore added candy and cigarettes (which sell for fice cents below the machine price) to its inventory.

During the next few weeks, the Bookstore will feature sales on records and pennants. Some Green Rviver pennants will be selling for half price, as long as they last, said Mrs. Bennatts, and records will be offered for savings of $2-3 per album. Capitol, MGM, Dot, Mercury, Decca and Coral records will be featured in the sale. Albums that regularly sell for as high as $4.98 will be sold for $1.98 and records that run up to $5.98 will be on sale for $2.98.

Engrave college stationery has also been added to the merchandise available in the bookstore, Mrs. Bennatts pointed out.

Christmas Vacation Has a 40-Hour Week

By EDWARD L. POOLE

Christmas is less than three weeks away; and, after finals next week, whether we win or lose, (gulp) the holidays will be upon us with trips to the homestead, the ski slopes and other festive vacation retreats; unless, of course, you happen to be a Boeing work-study undergraduate at GRCC. For them the end of fall quarter signals a return to the salt mine, away from the ivy-scented halls of Gator Country and back to the eight-hour day of the kite factory.

In a way it is quite a relief and, to that extent, a kind of vacation in itself. Just imagine, three whole weeks of no homework! Some of the boys will be swapping books for paintbrushes and grass rakes in order to take care of the household fixups that have waited and grown since school started. Others are planning get-acquainted parties for themselves and their younger children who know dad only as the guy who "sleeps here on weekends". One undergrad even said he was going to have his TV fixed so he could find out how the elections came out.

Regardless of holiday plans, however, all of the work-study students, and, in fact, all the student body and faculty, have one special thing in common to be thankful for as this quarter draws to a close and we prepare to observe once again the anniversary of the birth of the Prince of Peace. Despite the commercial crassness of the holiday hucksters, we still are able to enjoy for free the priceless gift of being here rather than in Vietnam or on the Pueblo. For that privilege, that gift, only one kind of thanks is suitable, and that must be a resolve to end the mess in Vietnam, whether by the hawk, dove or seagull method — just end it, and have our servicemen home for Christmas in 1969.

Japanese Students Here To Study Agriculture

Thirteen Japanese students arrived at Green River Monday to begin three months of classroom work after several months on vegetable farms in the Northwest.

The students, participants in a program sponsored jointly by the Japanese Agricultural Training Council and the National 4-H Foundation, will stay in homes in the Auburn area while going to school here.

The students were greeted by college administrators, Hiroshi Nakayama of Kent, their instructor while here; Takaaki Matsushita, former student in the program who attended Green River for three months last year — now the Seattle representative for the Japanese Agricultural Training Council; and B. L. "Bob" Weiss, Seattle representative of the National 4-H Foundation, supervisor of the Japanese Agricultural Training Program in this area.

Also on hand to greet the students at their arrival on campus Monday were host families — Rev. and Mrs. John C. Meadors of Auburn, Dr. and Mrs. George Nickelsen of Auburn; Dr. and Mrs. O. L. Montgomery of Kent; Mr. and Mrs. James D. Webb of Auburn; Mr. and Mrs. George Kawasaki of Kent, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Shannon of Auburn.

Students in the program include Hisataka Nakata, Keitaro Sakamoto, Sadao Hirai, Tadayoshi Unoki, Katsuhiko Mase, Ichio Sasaki, Toyomi Nakahara, Yukihiro Kubota, Kiyohito Okuno, Toyooki Omori, Takahisa Morota, Tadaaki Terada, and Akira Yamazaki.

The students, all majoring in vegetable production, have been in the United States since June of 1967 and will be returning to Japan next June. They go back as leaders in the field of agriculture in Japan and help teach others by setting model farms at home. Five students out of the first group to study in the United States joined the Japanese Peace Corps to teach others.

JAPANESE STUDENTS ARRIVE — James Webb, center, was one of the hosts greeting Japanese agriculture students who arrived Monday for a three month stay at Green River. The students will stay in local homes.

The students range in age from 18 to 30. They are hand picked in Japan with a maximum of 200 annually visiting the United States on the program. While here they work for 18 months, receiving the going wage in the area they are working, and the money is paid to the Japanese Agricultural Training Council. The Council takes out the amount needed to cover their expenses, including round trip transportation from Japan, and gives the boys a small expense allowance. Whatever is left at the end of two years is given to the students when they return home. The program is therefore self supporting.

The students arrive in this country and take orientation training in basic agriculture and language lessons at Moses Lake Community College before going to work on various farms in the Northwest. Of the two years in the United States, 18 months is spent in the field and six months in the classroom. Much of the classroom time is devoted to field trips.

Previously visiting Green River were farmers studying poultry production. Other areas of student include beef, swine, dairy, rice, citrus and other tree fruits, and ornamental horticultural.

Another group of poultry students will arrive in Auburn for three months in the classroom this March.

Students to Sign Up For Job Placement

During Winter Quarter registration students will have an opportunity to complete a file on themselves to be placed in the Placement Bureau in the Counseling Center if they plan to seek employment at the end of this year.

The credentials material will include several items. The student will fill out a general information sheet about himself, take a form for a letter of recommendation that he will have a faculty member from his major area write, and will be given a form to have his past employer fill out. The former employer form is optional, according to Clark Townsend, head of the Placement Bureau.

The forms must be returned to the Placement Office by mid-January.

Industry and business recruiters who visit the campus to interview prospective employees will meet with students seeking employment after completion of a program at Green River.

Career Placement Listed on New Bulletin Boards

Three bulletin boards for Career Job Opportunities have been set up on campus by the Placement Office.

One of the bulletin boards is located just outside the Counseling Center in the Holman Library Building. Two others are situated in the hallways of the Humanities-Social Studies office building and the Science-Technology office building.

Clark Townsend, head of the college Placement Office, said that there is a special need for girls who will finish two years of education this quarter to go to work as service representatives — management positions — with local industry. Girls interested in details about the program may contact the Placement Bureau.

Gators Out-Scored In Season Opener

Green River's Gators open the 1968-69 home basketball schedule this Friday in the college gymnasium, hosting defending state champion Bellevue. Game time is 8 p.m.

The last time Green River and Bellevue met, the Helmsmen defeated the Gators for the state championship. It was the only loss the Green River team ever suffered on its home floor.

Friday's game will not be a conference game. Bellevue plays in the league's Eastern Division and Green River is a member of the Western Division.

On Saturday, the Gators host St. Martin's College freshmen in another non-conference encounter, also slated to start at 8 p.m.

Both Bellevue and Green River, expected to be powerhouses in their respective divisions, got off to shaky starts this year. The Helmsmen lost to Highline last Friday, 104-91, but came back to win Saturday against the Thunderbirds, 87-76, on a field goal in the final 14 seconds by

Barnard Hoop Team Scores Win

John Barnard's trio in the faculty Three-on-Three Half Court Basketball Tournament looked like the favorite Tuesday in racking up a victory over John Bieber's threesome, 20-4 and 20-2.

Mike McIntyre's team had a tougher time defeating Doug Peterson's squad, 20-10 and 20-18.

Barnard's team — which includes Rawhide Papritz, Larry Turnbull, and Doug Carr — will play McIntyre, Jack Johnson and Bob Aubert in the winner's bracket at noon Friday.

Meeting in the loser's bracket at the other end of the basketball court Friday will be John Bieber, Bernie Bleha, and Doug Ferguson against Peterson, Wayne Rosenbrock, and Guy Blanton.

Coach Huston Arrives

By Ben Bergsma

Green River Community College assistant basketball coach Don Huston is not an ordinary coach, but a special one in that he comes from a family of basketball players.

Coach Huston is one of three brothers in the family. He is originally from Camas, Wash., where he first played guard for the Camas High School basketball team (near Vancouver). When Don was a senior in 1961, his high school team went to the class AA basketball tournament but was unable to claim victory. From Camas, he went on to play four more years at Western Washington State College in Bellingham. In 1965, the year he was graduated, he was voted the Best Representative On and Off the Court. In 1966-67, he became assistant coach at Western. Ritzville High School offered him the job of head coach for the 67-68 season, which he accepted with eager anticipation. This 25 year-old bachelor is currently teaching math at Cascade Junior High School in Auburn. He now resides on Lake Tapps, just outside of Auburn.

Another of the ball playing brothers is Don's older brother Dennis Huston. Dennis, now 27 years old, is head coach at Clark Community College in Vancouver. Dennis also played guard for the Western Washington State College team. When he was a college senior, in 1963, he was voted the Inspirational Award winner by his team-mates. After helping coach Western's team in 1964-65, he accepted the job of first assistant, then head coach at Clark Community College where he is still employed.

The third of the Huston boys is 20 year-old Ed Huston. In Ed's senior year at Camas High, he became the high point man per game in the state of Washington with 28 points per game. The following year he went on to Clark College where he played basketball under his older brother Dennis. This 6'3" guard still managed a 20-point

Gator Grapplers Hit Road for First Meet

A powerful Green River College wrestling squad — 21 members in all — heads for the Grays Harbor Invitational Saturday to open the 1968-69 season.

For regular dual meets Coach Doug Carr will have to get the squad down to 10 members — one for each wrestling weight — but he'll be able to enter the entire team in matches this Saturday.

Letterman Ben Bergsma of Renton will be wrestling in the heavyweight division for the Gators. Roger Woolley, a sophomore from Redmond, will compete over his weight at 191 at Grays Harbor. Woolley can wrestle in either the 167 or 177 weight divisions, but Carr decided the experienced grappler should try 191 for this meet.

At 177 will be letterman Rex Febus of Issaquah, one of last year's mainstays. In the 167-pound weight class, Carr will enter Rod Luce and Gary Henak of Auburn and Bob Bacon of Puyallup.

Wrestling at 160 will be Steve Kerola of Issaquah, high school state champion last year at 168, and Mike Yantis, Bellevue.

Entered in the 152-pound division will be Terry Hoffer of Auburn, Tom Blessing of Bellevue, and Ron Lee of Renton. Lee is a sophomore who lettered last spring in baseball for Green River.

Competing at 145 will be letterman Don Brown of Renton and Terry Montgomery of Enumclaw. Dan Trudeau and Larry Laughlin, both of Auburn, and Mike La Fluer of Lakes will wrestle at 137.

Entered at 133 will be Dan Michels of Renton, Pal Walsh of Lincoln in Tacoma, and Jim McLaughlin of Redmond.

Cross country lettermen Bill Mendenhall of Tyee and Norm Snodgrass of Sumner will compete at 123 pounds.

Rob Bennatts, state high school champion at Auburn last year, is expected to join the GRCC wrestling squad before the season is over but is sidelined currently with a leg injury. Dan Vogler, a letterman Gator from last year, may be joining the team next quarter (January) but there is nothing definite, according to Carr.

Walt Pedferri, the most winning wrestler in the history of the school with a 19-4 record last year, is back taking classes at the college this year but has used up his eligibility in community college so is working with Carr as a student coach.

The schedule for the year is as follows:

Saturday, December 7, Grays Harbor Invitational at Aberdeen.

Saturday, January 4, University of Washington Invitational at Seattle.

Wednesday, January 8, Skagit Valley at GRCC, 7:30 p.m.
