MR. GERALD HEDLUND

Hedlund Attends National Meeting

Gerald Hedlund of the Green River College faculty will attend a national meeting of the American Anthropological Association in Washington, D.C., November 30 to December 4.

Mr. Hedlund this summer was featured on a special television course presented twice a week for eight weeks over KING-TV, Channel 5. The series lasted for eight weeks.

The Green River College anthropologist joined the college staff last year after teaching at Sedro Wooley High School where he was head of the social studies department.

He is a graduate of Western Washington State College and the University of Oregon.

'New Numbers' Shown Next Thursday Noon

"New Numbers," a film on mathematics, is next week's film from the science film series.

Presented by the science division at Green River, this film will be shown on Thursday in ST-5 at 12:10. The second showing is at 3:00 p.m.

The science department will present a number of films throughout the quarter pertaining mainly to the areas of science and mathematics, according to Dr. Edward Fohn, chairman of the science division.

There is no admission charge.

Thanksgiving Vacation Set

All Green River College classes will be dismissed Thursday and Friday, November 23 and 24, for Thanksgiving.

This will enable the students to have a four day weekend to celebrate this national holiday.

Classes will resume the following Monday, November 27.

Proficiency Test Date Set

The English Proficiency Test for students who wish to qualify for English 101 will be administered Tuesday, November 28, from 8 - 10 a.m. and from 6:30 - 8:30 p.m.

Students wishing to take the test must pay a $1.00 fee and register in the registrar's office before November 17.

A description of the test is on reserve in the library.

Open House Scheduled Next Sunday; Special Tours, Displays Planned

Green River College swings open its doors Sunday afternoon, November 19, for an Open House from 1 to 5 o'clock, recognizing the completion of the new $750,000 Performing Arts Building and the Physical Education Center.

Students will be on hand to guide guests on tours of the entire campus. Dr. Melvin Lindbloom said this week that displays will be arranged in various classrooms and some special demonstrations will be going on during the afternoon. Most of the "performing" during the afternoon will be conducted in either the gymnasium or the Performing Arts Building.

Doug Carr of the P.E. department said that continuous demonstrations — folk dancing, gymnastics, wrestling, and weight-lifting on the college's new Universal Gym — will be open to the public in the Physical Education Center.

In the Performing Arts Building, Gary Taylor's drama students will present two one-act plays — Tennessee Williams' "Twenty-Seven Wagon Loads of Cotton" and "Autumn Splendor," an original production written by the drama appreciation class.

Ron Smith's music students will present special demonstrations on the overhead projector of work produced in the music theory classes as well as other music department work.

The Performing Arts Center is still without lights which are scheduled to be installed next month. However, both the arts buildings and the P.E. complex are being used quite extensively already. Monday Eddie Peabody, the nationally known banjo king, performed for an hour before a packed house with audiences watching the show from every nook and cranny in the building.

Coaches Bob Aubert and Dodg Carr started putting their teams through the paces beginning November 1 in the college gym. The baskets were installed just an hour before Aubert's first hoop drills. Carr at the same time is running the wrestlers through "toughening up" drills. Both wrestlers and basketball players begin the season in December.

The public will be on hand for all home games in the new college gym and, to top it off, Auburn High School's Trojans will play their home games in the college gym. Green River entered its first year of conference basketball last year using the Trojan gym for its home court.

Dr. Lindbloom said that most of the members of the faculty have agreed to be on hand for the afternoon Open House.

GR Management Club Promotes National DECA Organization

The Management Club is promoting National DECA Week on Green River's campus November 5 through November 11. According to Gary Ehler, Management Club president and State DECA vice-president, the purpose of National Distributive Education Clubs of America (DECA) Week is to call attention to the Distributive Education Program, to enhance the educational facilities of Green River College and to highlight the activities of DECA, of which the Management Club is a part.

DECA is the only national youth organization operating through the public schools of the nation to attract young people to careers in marketing and distribution. Its members include these students enrolled in the Distributive Education Instructional Program.

Future Leaders

Green River's Management Club is a part of DECA to help develop future leaders for marketing and distribution. Its goals, according to Ehler, are to develop a respect for education in marketing and distribution which will contribute to vocational competence, and to promote understanding and appreciation for the responsibilities of citizenship in our free, competitive enterprise system.

Awards Service

The Club encourages civic responsibility through professional conferences, Chapter activities, school improvement projects and support of community activities, maintains a series of competitive projects and activities, all designed to stimulate and motivate classroom interest, career encouragement and vocational competence.

It also recognizes and awards student members for outstanding accomplishment in competition with other members and maintains its own Scholarship Loan Program to assist and encourage its members toward higher education.

DECA had its beginning in 1947 with only 800 students in 17 charter states. It has grown to include some 75,000 students in 49 states, Puerto Rico, and the District of Columbia in 1967.

PLANNING SYMPOSIUM — Meredith Van Ry and Rex Waldron are busy planning an art-philosophy symposium scheduled November 30 at the college.

Art, Philosophy

College Sponsors Symposium

Green River College is sponsoring an art symposium entitled, "Art, the Visual Expression of Contemporary Thought," through the use of visual media, on Thursday, November 30, 1967.

Members of the panel are: Ronald Carraher, a prominent film maker, who will bring films to be shown for the occasion; John Geise, prize-winning sculptor from the Seattle area; Ugo Adriano Graziotti, a painter-philosopher from Florence, Italy; and Dr. Philip Montague, from Western Washington State College, philosophy department, whose major area is aesthetics.

There will be two performances; the first at 1 p.m. for the student body, and a repeat performance at 7:45 in the evening for the community and interested art personnel. Invitations are going out to art groups and people in university and college art departments and art groups throughout the local area.

Mr. Rex Waldron and Mrs. Meredith Van Ry are in charge of the symposium.

The production will be staged in the Performing Arts Center.

'Clouds Are Dreaming' Sets Semi-Formal Mood

"Clouds are Dreaming" has been selected as the theme of the semi-formal dance to be held at the Tacoma Mall on November 18, according to Cheryl Missler, overall dance chairman.

The "Men of Note," a ten-piece orchestra, will provide the atmosphere for the evening as they enhance the attending couples with "dreamy" music.

Tickets for the dance are being sold throughout today and next week. The tickets cost $3.00 per couple and include the dance and refreshments. The semi-formal will be held from 8:30 to 12:30 a.m. near the Bon Marche on the Mall.

The advertisement committee, under the direction of Cheryl, has been creating interest for the dance through signs such as "The colors are blue and white, so dream of a cloud" and "Happiness is a cloud, if . . ." A silver cloud is also hanging in the upper lounge.

DANCE CHAIRMAN — Cheryl Missler, overall chairman of the upcoming semi-formal, is busily preparing for the "Clouds are Dreaming" affair.

Persistence More Effective Than Violent Movements

"Our country, right or wrong. When right, let it be kept right. When wrong, let be put right."

The last five words of this phrase are seriously abused when taken out of context, but they have often been used as a reason for suppression of the Right and ridiculed by a provincial approach to political participation.

Never before in the history of the United States has the right to protest, to let the U.S. be "put right" by criticism been so diligently exercised. Yet when past protest movements are compared with those taking place today, it is clear that the citizens right to criticize his government has never been so unchallenged.

No sooner had the United States freed itself from English domination than the Alien and Sedition Acts were passed, restricting public and press criticism of the new government. Even earlier, the trial of printer John Peter Zenger in 1734, for criticism of a colonial governor, evidenced censorship of public criticism. Numerous cases can be cited throughout American history.

Presently many protest movements are centered around the undeclared war in which the U.S. is involved. Even on the campus level where these discussions take place there are cries of suppression and undue pressure from the opposition. But protests on the college level bring much of the disfavor upon themselves, whether by attacking another group or by their own activities in support of a cause.

The "protestors" cry of intolerance and yet in many cases display unbelievable intolerance; they claim that their freedom of speech is abused, but abuse that of others. When a speaker opposed to them has appeared on a campus, they have rioted, thrown things, and driven him off the campus.

More intelligent, tolerant groups present their views more effectively through the use of persistent peaceful demonstrations and picketing.

The successful movements continue their appeal to reason. The use of violence only increases resistance. In "putting right" the nation, the side that wins will win through reason and positive action, allowing freedom of speech to its opposition, but presenting a better case, not violence or intolerance.

Why Don't We Forget Again?

One year ago tomorrow the Seattle Post-Intelligencer ran a three column by five inch blank space, on the front page, under the headline "Veterans Day, Seattle Nov. 11, 1966."

The caption read: "This space was reserved for an event that never took place here — a Veteran's Day parade and major ceremony honoring the city's war dead. But Seattle forgot. With this blank epitaph The Post Intelligencer apologized to the memory of the thousands of men and women in American history, from the Revolutionary War to Viet Nam, who gave their lives for this great country."

Ironically, the next column carried a story with a Saigon dateline and a headline which read "Two Yank Divisions Shelled."

Will Seattle forget again? Probably — and probably just as well. We burn our draft cards, desecrate our flag, and curse our president; therefore, it seems only just and fitting to neglect our honored dead this year too.

(Ed Note: But Auburn won't. Ask Bill Wine about the local observance of Veteran's Day.)

Ripples On The Current

Dear Editor:

I am writing in reply to Mr. Moork's letter published in the November 3rd issue.

He cites the unwillingness of the public to fall in with his enlightened views as a justification for straying further and further from the law with demonstrations and protests.

These people certainly have a right to their opinions, but I feel that they are being rather presumptuous when they assume that they are possessed of the "true word" and that everyone who does not fall in with them is "apathetic."

Rather than being apathetic, I suggest that the public is expressing strong opinions in rejecting them and their views. Surely, Mr. Moork would agree the public has a right to make known its opinions.

Sincerely,
Walter Arrera

The conference will begin at 9:00 a.m. Tuesday, November 14th and close at 4:00 p.m. Thursday, November 16th.

The conference will focus on administrative and operational problems involved in the initiation and improvement of distributive education offerings for youth and adults in Post Secondary Institutions.

Mr. Passage is due to speak on a part of the program concerned with certain interest groups, including strengths in current programs of Distributive Education courses at community or junior colleges. He will speak the first day of the conference.

The purpose of the conference is to clarify emerging relationships within education and business, implement practices found effective in the articulation of instruction for different levels of employment, and examine suggestions proposed in "Post Secondary Distributive Education," a suggested guide for administrators and teachers.

Other fields of interest which are programed include such things as national perspectives, program development at state level, relationships with the business community, responsibilities of adult instruction, curriculum patterns, supporting services, and adequate programing of Distributive Education.

Auburn Ford Delivers 1967 Model Chassis

Cal Scarff, the Auburn Ford dealer, and Johnny Green, representative of the Ford Motor Co., visited Green River College last week to officially present the school's automotive department with a 1967 Ford chassis.

"Bud" Gadwa, GRCC automotive instructor, said that the chassis will be used in a phase of the college program and termed it a "valuable addition to the automotive facilities."

The chassis originally was part of a brand new Ford that apparently was damaged some place in shipping. The chassis, however, received no harm and therefore was donated to the college by the Seattle division of Ford Motor Company.

The Ford representative, Johnny Green, visited the college campus for the first time last week and offered high praise for the college facilities — primarily those in the automotive area.

78 Years of Statehood

Washington Marks Birthday

By Mary Aney

In 1889, the state of Washington was admitted to the Union of the United States. Tomorrow marks the anniversary of that entrance.

Nicknamed the Evergreen State, Washington has a high rate of lumber exports and aircraft production. But through the years Washington has been commonly recognized for two other things: apples and rain.

Washington's apple crop, which is the largest of any state, is renowned for its volume and quality. Washington's rain, on the other hand, is renowned mostly for quantity. Encyclopedias, textbooks, and Chamber of Commerce pamphlets usually phrase it "a mild, moist climate." But regardless of how a description of atmospheric conditions is put one fact remains clear: Washington provides an excellent environment for ducks and umbrella salesmen.

Tomorrow, November 11th, the Evergreen State commemorates its 78th year of statehood. And it will probably rain.

Recent College Figures Disclose Men Outnumbering Women at GRCC

The ratio of full-time men students to full-time women students is approximately two and a half to one, according to Mr. Richard Barclay, registrar.

This figure compares with a seven to one ratio of males to females for the 1966-67 school year. However, the ratio of part-time men to part-time women is almost the same, 890-832, and the total part-time and full-time men is 1,953 to 1,233 total women.

There are more part-time students (students carrying less than 12 credit hours per week), 1722, than there are full time students, 1,464. However, there are 1,602 day classes held as compared to less night class, 1,571.

One hundred and seventy-six married women are attending classes at Green River while 106 married men attend.

The average age of matriculated female students is 24, while the average age of the matriculated male students is 21. A matriculated student is one who has gone through the registration processes. A special student is one who attends only one class. The average age of special women students is 31, whereas, the average age of special males is 30.

The oldest matriculated woman is 58 years of age and the youngest is 18 years old. The oldest matriculated male is 48 years old and the youngest is 17 years old.

There are 181 students enrolled in the Renton Branch of Green River College, some of which also have classes at Auburn. Up until October 5, only 87 students have withdrawn from college.

The highest number of credits taken by a student at Green River College is 23 while the average schedule includes 15 credit hours of class. Three hundred and sixty students carry a credit load of 15 hours.

Hippies To Be Discussed At Next Philosophy Meeting

"Hippy, Hippy, Where Goest Thou, and Why" will be the topic of discussion for the evening, according to the Landstrom's.

Anyone interested in attending the meeting should contact Mrs. Van Ry or Mr. Wayne Luckmann, English instructor, for transportation or directions to the home of the Landstrom's.

WACCSG Holds Meeting

The State Executive Council meeting for the Washington Association of Community College Student Government (WACCSG) was held on the Green River campus last week.

Attending the meeting were Fred Ericson, chairman of the President's council, from Olympia; Dr. Bolon, chairman of the board of trustees, from Olympia; Wes Wilburn, governor of the WACCSG, from Everett; Carry Cartmier, representing the WACCSG newsletter, from Centralia; and Teri O'Grady, WACCSG secretary, from Green River College.

Mr. Robert Aubert, coordinator of student activities, also sat in on the meeting as advisor to Miss O'Grady.

The Executive Council planned the state cabinet meeting which will be held November 17 and made a list of suggestions for the Annual State WACCSG Convention which will be held in May.

Two One-Act Plays Set for Open House

PLAY REHEARSAL - "Can You Paint THAT, Boy?", a one-act play written by the drama appreciation class, will be presented Sunday afternoon, Nov. 19, at the college Open House. Rehearsing for the play are Laurii Bouldron and Chris Walker who play the lead roles. Also to be presented on the same program is Tennessee Williams' "Twenty-Seven Wagon Loads of Cotton."

Gary Taylor's Green River College drama students will present a pair of one-act plays on Sunday, November 19, in the college's Performing Arts Building as part of the college Open House from 1 to 5 p.m.

The Open House officially recognizes the completion of the new Performing Arts Building as well as the new Physical Education Center.

The plays slated for the Open House are Tennessee Williams' "Twenty-Seven Wagon Loads of Cotton" and an original one-act play by the drama appreciation class called "Autumn Splendor."

Starring in the Williams play are Mary Jean Babinski of Bellevue, Jim Greieger of Renton, and John Lindbloom of Puyallup. "Autumn Splendor," a play with 24 authors, is about two young people's quest for beauty and what they do with it when they find it. In the cast are Laurii Bouldron, Kent; Chris Walker, Auburn; Jim Meyer, West Seattle; Rick Hinojosa, Texas; and Helen Szveda, Maple Valley.

The two plays will be scheduled for a second public performance sometime in December, said Taylor.

Ensemble Groups Started By Music Department At GR

Two instrumental ensemble groups have been started at Green River College this fall under the direction of Vernon Nicklaus and Doug Corliss of the Federal Way School District.

Mr. Nicklaus, head of music instruction in the Federal Way district and director of the high school band, is handling the brass ensemble and Mr. Corliss, woodwind specialist, is directing a small woodwind ensemble.

One Credit

Both groups are still looking for more participation from college students, although it is too late to sign up for credit this quarter. One credit is offered for the course each quarter.

Participants in the program meet every Monday from 3:30 to 5:30 p.m. in the Performing Arts Center.

Brass Ensemble

In the brass ensemble are two trombones, three trumpets, two French horns, a baritone, bass and cello. Nicklaus said he hopes to increase the size of the group by next quarter. "I'd like a couple more French horns, one or two more trombones, another trumpet, and a baritone," he said. A full brass ensemble would include 18 instruments.

The woodwind ensemble is limited to three flutes, an oboe, and a saxophone, so Mr. Corliss will also be trying to recruit musicians for next quarter.

Eventual Band

Ron Smith, director of the college's music program, said that the groups are hoping to move to full sized ensembles and eventually to a band.

The current groups are planning a performance before the end of the quarter, possibly at Christmas.

ENSEMBLE PRACTICE - Every Monday afternoon in the Performing Arts Building two groups of musicians are busily putting together selections for a December performance. Director of the woodwind ensemble is Doug Corliss and conducting the brass ensemble is Vernon Nicklaus, both of Federal Way.

M.U.N.

Iraq To Be Represented By College

Green River will again be represented at the West Coast Collegiate Model United Nations Conference which will be held at the University of Arizona this year, according to Larry Knipshield, chairman of the delegation.

Green River College has received Iraq as the country they will represent.

Gathering Info

Thus far, the class has been concerned with gathering information about Iraq and generally learning more about the United Nations itself.

Model U.N. meets began as high school activities, but after its value was realized, colleges began participating in Collegiate Model United Nations.

Veterans

Five students in this year's class: Ken Malidore, Ellen Stendal, Mike Butler, Mary Heindel, and Larry Knipshield are veterans of the M.U.N., having attended last year's meet in Portland. They report that a strong nationalistic feeling is developed for the country one represents. Even if it is only a small country, it can play a significant role in the junior United Nations, and its delegates can help to make each meet a huge success.

Hoopsters Run Through Drills

Coaches Aubert, Adams Welcome BB Hopefuls

The 1967-68 Green River basketball team began workouts under the supervision of Coaches Bob Aubert and Nigel Adams on November 1. Coach Aubert ran 23 men through drills, and among them were four lettermen and five transfers.

The Gators will have much more depth than last year. At the center position, Marion Bozman, a 6'8" transfer from Eastern Washington State College, is proficient with Steve Powell backing up. Also able to play the center slot is John Harrell, a 6'5" freshman from Hamilton, Ohio, or Greg Brovold, 6'5" letterman from Enumclaw.

Besides Brovold and Harrell, Coach Aubert can count on Tom Solberg, a 6'3" transfer from WSU, and Terry Rudnick, a 6'5" sophomore transfer from Yakima Valley College.

Also looking for the nod at forward will be Rick Basquette, 6'3" freshman from Renton, Jack Boyett, a 6'5" letterman from Kent, Gary Cressman, a 6'4" freshman from South Kitsap, and another freshman from Renton, Mike Willis.

At guard Coach Aubert can call on an experienced crew from Moses Taylor, 6'1" transfer from Columbia Basin College, Duane Barnette, 6'1" transfer from Eastern Washington State College, Roger Sloan, 6'1" letterman, and Tim Cummings, 5'11" freshman from Renton.

The basketball season promises to be an exciting one according to Coach Aubert.

Schedule Includes 25 Games

The year in basketball will see many new things. Besides the new faces, there will be a new gym and a new league alignment.

The Gators will play a 25 game schedule this year in the new Western division of the State Community College League. Composing the new conference will be Green River, Highline, Edmonds, Tacoma, Olympic, Peninsula, Centralia, Grays Harbor, Lower Columbia, and Clark. The season begins on December 1 with the Gators hosting Yakima in a non-league game.

Special K GR Camera Roves

By LARRY KNIPSHIELD

Let us now depart from the realm of reality into the mythical land of the crystal ball. What is coming up for Green River's student body this winter?

Many things can be seen, among them assorted activities to interest most anyone. For roundball fans we have the 1967-68 GRCC basketball team. This group of long-legged athletes will provide thrills and spills for the more enthusiastic fans. Our new gym will hold as many people as will show up to watch the likes of Marion Bozman, Roger Sloan, Greg Brovold, Tim Cummings, and Moses "Bandit" Taylor. These great and noble ball bouncers are on their way to fame and glory.

For the people who prefer lots of muscle and physical contact, there are the Gator grapplers to keep an eye on. Green River's answer to Samson, Hercules, and "The Destroyer" can be found nightly showing off in the gym.

A roving camera might reveal many strange sights on the mats such as Walt Pedferri wrestling big Ben Bergsma, and Jon Pedferri wrestling anybody.

Off campus, a person can head for the slopes and shuss away as soon as the logs and stumps get covered.

Until that time, you can hold nightly pray-ins to bring the fluffy white to the mountains. If that doesn't appeal to you, wax the slats.

For those that don't really dig basketball, wrestling, or skiing, there are the old standbys, co-educational extracurricular activities.

The special K salute this week goes not to an individual, but to a whole bunch of guys. I salute the GRCC cross country team for not collapsing by now.

Woods Wins CC Honors

Last Friday at Centralia the Green River Harriers met Lower Columbia, Tacoma, and Centralia in their fifth meet of the season. Guy Woods of Green River led the pack, touring the 3 mile course in 15:22.

Although Woods took individual honors, the team victory went to Tacoma who put 5 men in the first ten. Finishing in second place was Tacoma's Rice followed by the Gator's Dennis Jones. Also placing for the Gators were Dave Cavievel, Chuck LaCoss, and Glenn Bearson.

KEEP IN STEP — In a recent practice session in the college gym two candidates for the Gators seemed to be going through a ballet step. Actually, Rick Basquette was trying to score as an unidentified opponent tried to check the shot.
